Dear Parents of College-Bound Students:

If I've heard them once, I've heard them a hundred times, "How am I ever going to afford to pay for [you fill in the blank]'s college?" "Why can't [you fill in the blank] go to a less expensive college?" These are the same questions I heard my parents ask when they were dealing with their three sons. They are the same questions I heard for ten years from parents when I volunteered as an Alumni Admission Representative for Carleton College. They are the same questions I hear every year from parents of graduating high school seniors.

From my training as an Alumni Admission Representative, I know there are ways to keep college payments to a minimum through smart financial preparation and through scholarships and other forms of financial aid. But I've never known the specifics or had the expertise in what those ways are.

After talking with Jerry Prucha, I now know that there are people who do know the specifics and have the expertise for keeping college payments to a minimum. That's why I encourage you to take advantage of this offering from Jerry and College Funding Solutions, Inc.

The seminar that Jerry is offering at Westlake United Methodist Church costs nothing to attend. After you have had the services of College Funding Solutions (and the cost of those services) explained, you can decide whether or not their services would benefit your family situation.

Sincerely,

Rev. Ken Ehrman
